

SOLUTION

Do Good Sh*t.

That's the whole pitch. Now here's what it looks like, who it's for, and why it actually works.

THE PROBLEM

Resources exist. Connection doesn't.

FOR BUSINESSES

The cost of doing good is too high.

Surplus food costs money to throw away.

Existing programs add work without payoff.

Doing good is invisible to the customers who'd reward it.

FOR COMMUNITY ORGS

Doing the work, alone.

Food rescue, training, supply chains – all in separate silos.

Funding is fragile. Coordination is informal.

No shared platform to amplify the work.

FOR RESIDENTS

Want to help. Don't know how.

Hard to tell what businesses are doing good.

Civic pride has nowhere to land.

Small contributions feel like they don't add up.

*The ingredients are already on the table. Nothing connects them.

HOW IT WORKS

A civic brand platform.

~~NOT A CHARITY. NOT A COUNCIL PROGRAM.~~

*Just Do Good Sh*t connects Melbourne CBD's businesses, residents, and community orgs into a circular economy of contribution — where giving back drives brand value, not just goodwill.*

THE LOOP

- 01 Businesses or people contribute — micro-funds, surplus food, time, skills.
 - 02 Platform optimises logistics that are already in place — routes, schedules, who needs what, when.
 - 03 Community partners receive coordinated resources and do what they do best.
 - 04 Outcomes are tracked, amplified, and credited back to the businesses that funded them.

FOR BUSINESSES

Recognise businesses who do good shit, as the heroes they are.

THE ASK — MINIMAL, BY DESIGN

Give.

- 01 Micro-contribution per purchase (e.g. 20¢ per coffee).
- 02 Surplus food — picked up nightly, no extra work.
- 03 One 20-minute setup. A laminated brief for staff.
- 04 That's it.

THE RETURN — COMMERCIAL, NOT ALTRUISTIC

Get back.

- 01 Businesses and their good work get recognised.
- 02 Their story amplified, encouraging community connection.
- 03 Cross-collab marketing content generated for you.
- 04 Council compliance evidence on sustainability.
- 05 Leaderboard ranking. Community Hero Award eligibility.
- 06 The circular badge on your shopfront.

FOR RESIDENTS • FOR COMMUNITY ORGS

What everyone else gets out of it.

RESIDENTS

A city you can feel yourself in.

A local map of every participating business in the CBD.

Real-time collective impact — meals redirected, fund balance, contributions to date.

Nominate the businesses you love for Community Hero Awards.

You now know your morning coffee is part of something larger.

COMMUNITY ORGS

Coordinated resources. Less admin.

Streat, SecondBite, OzHarvest, Brotherhood of St Laurence plug in as delivery partners.

Resources arrive coordinated — not in twelve uncoordinated drops.

Funding becomes steady, not seasonal.

The work gets amplified. They keep doing the work.

FEASIBILITY • OUR STRONGEST CARD

We're not asking anyone to do anything new.

Every part of the loop already exists. We're connecting them — not inventing them.

CommonFolk

Already runs the 20¢ micro-contribution model. Founding partner. (Mornington example)

Streat

Trains young people into hospitality jobs. Live employment pipeline.

SecondBite

CBD food-rescue van routes already running every night.

Higher Ground

Flagship CBD venue already donating surplus and running staff-led community programs.

OzHarvest

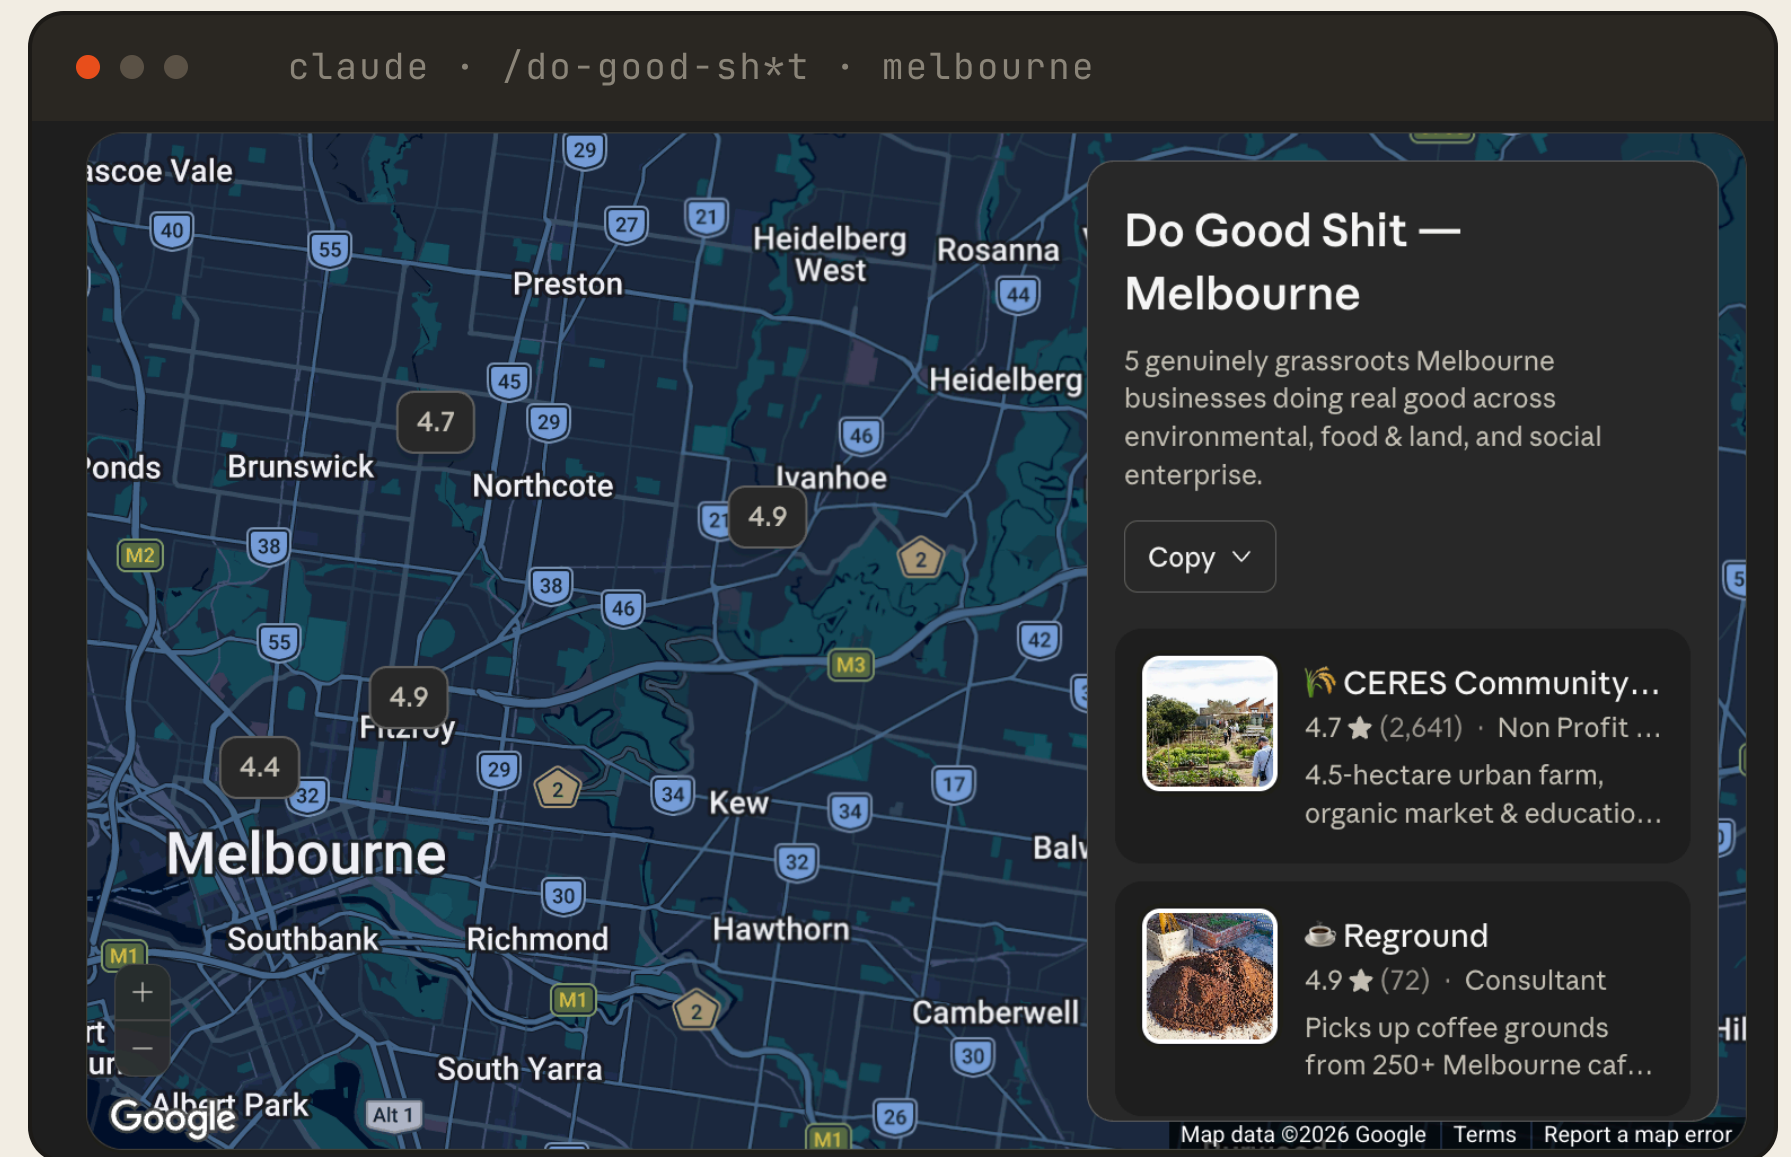

Food rescue at national scale. CBD pickup routes already running daily.

EXISTING NODES ----- NEW EDGE • THE PLATFORM

One slash. Done.

Type /do good shit in any Claude conversation. Tell it your suburb. Get a hand-picked map of the businesses, orgs and projects in your neighbourhood actually doing something that matters.

- 01 Five focus areas — Good for the Planet · Good for People · Eat Good · Stay Local · Surprise Me.
- 02 Verified, suburb-specific picks. Independents only — no chains, no greenwash. Each one with a stat that matters and a concrete way to get involved.
- 03 Plotted on a live map. Shop, volunteer, attend, or share — straight from chat.

The council's feed, on command.

A community impact lead or social media manager types `/do good shit`, picks their patch, and gets verified grassroots stories from the streets they govern — authentic content, ready to post.

01 Find the story, not the listing.

One command surfaces verified grassroots businesses doing real work in their patch — ready-made content that feels authentic, not promotional.

02 Post with purpose.

Turn every result into a community spotlight, event shoutout, or call to action — content that drives engagement because it actually means something to locals.

03 Build the loop.

Council shines a light on who's doing good shit → residents discover and support → businesses grow → community wins. The feed becomes connective tissue.

@YARRACITYCOUNCIL • COMMUNITY SPOTLIGHT

CERES Community has rescued 12 tonnes of food this year. Their kitchen runs on Sydney Rd — pay them a visit.

@MELBCITYCOUNCIL • LOCAL HERO

Reground turns your morning coffee grounds into compost for inner-city growers. Lt Bourke St, every weekday.

@MORELANDCC • THIS WEEKEND

Brunswick makers' market drops Saturday — 38 verified locals at the Town Hall. Shopping list inside.

THE PLATFORM

Community platform. Five features.

APP ACCESS

F . 01

Community Hero Awards

Melbourne's civic Michelin star. Judged on contribution.

F . 02

Leaderboard Rankings

Public ranking by contribution. Resets annually. Being at the top is coveted.

F . 03

Monthly Campaigns

One pillar a month. Themed badge, content angle, pooled fund.

F . 04

Business Profiles

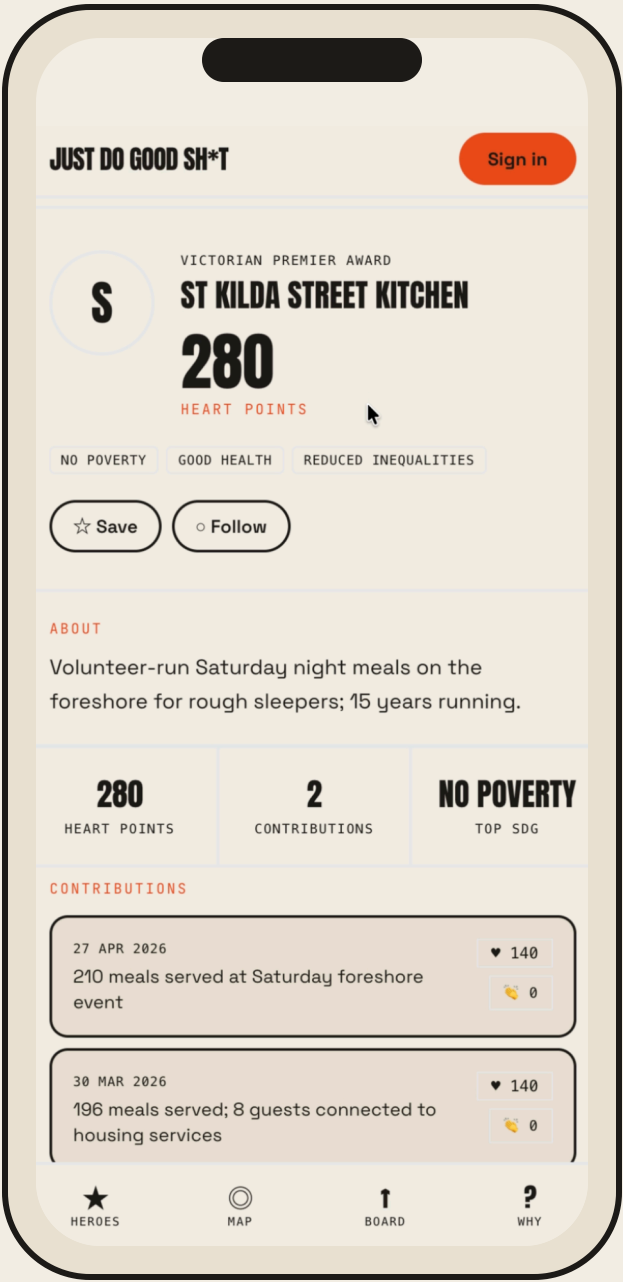

A living profile — origin, contribution trail, real-time impact counter, customer nominations.

F . 05

Local Map

Every participating business in the CBD. Filter by contribution type. Choose with your feet.

Offline too. Badge on the shopfront. SMS nomination. Staff as the human interface. Because equity means the loop works for everyone — with or without a phone. Simple guerilla advertising through wifi naming: Doing Good Sh*t at Swanston Street Bakery.

LIVABILITY

Melbourne sells itself on café culture, laneways, and community. This platform is literally made of those things.

07:42 • MORNING

The coffee.

20¢ on the cup goes to the fund. The barista knows where it's heading. So does the customer.

13:15 • MIDDAY

The laneway lunch.

Tonight's surplus is already booked. The kitchen knows what to put aside. The bins are lighter.

18:20 • EVENING

The walk home.

Every shopfront with the badge is part of the loop. The street feels different — because it is.

ICONIC SIGNATURES

Every iconic city has its thing.

A small ritual the locals know, the world watches, and the city is shaped around. Three exist already. Melbourne's is the next one — and it's a category the others don't have.

PARIS

The baguette.

A city-wide contest of craft. The bakery on your corner is competing for the whole city — and the winner serves the Élysée.

NEW YORK

The bodega.

Every block has one. Open at 3am. Cat on the counter. The pulse of the neighbourhood, by the neighbourhood.

NAPLES

The pizza.

Two ingredients, six generations deep, UNESCO-protected. The crust isn't a recipe — it's an inheritance.

MELBOURNE

Doing good sh*t.

The true definition of cool is doing good.

TRANSFORMABILITY

Melbourne first. Then everywhere.

Prove the loop in the CBD. Roll out across Melbourne's neighbourhoods next. Then licence the model to other cities.

THE ASK

From prototype to pilot.

Four commitments. Ninety days. One CBD.

01

Council partnership.

City of Melbourne as anchor partner. Endorsement, funding line, ribbon-cut moment, core collaborator.

02

20 founding businesses.

We need 20 CBD businesses (and the community organisations they support) to launch the leaderboard at meaningful scale.

03

SecondBite logistics MOU.

Broker agreement on existing CBD van routes. Leveraging services that exist. We're not here to reinvent the wheel, just simplify where it works.

04

An equity-first design commitment.

PILOT

Melbourne CBD - Live by Q1 2027

OUTCOME

Replicable model

WHERE THIS LANDS

*The café still sells coffee. The kitchen still finds a home for tonight's surplus.
The street still buzzes. Melbourne still works — and now the loop runs every day, on its own.*
